Regarding Security at the Crystal Cave:

We have taken great measures to ensure the safety of the 'Scroll of Calling,' which we have to valiantly taken from the Necromancer Maabus
during the battle of the wood nearly 200 years ago.

The scroll must never fall into the hands of the Necromancers again, lest they use it to summon the ancient daemon Kronus. The 'Scroll of Calling' is a necessity in the series of dark rites the Necromancers must perform to once again
re-awaken Kronus.
Should Kronus ever rise again, the days of the Paladins, and indeed humanity as we know it will be numbered.

For this reason, we have posted the honorable Horus, former General of the Northern Legions to guard the entrance of the Crystal Cave where we keep the 'Scroll of Calling.' Horus was infused with magical life from the tree Urywen during his last battle. The power gave him eternal life, but it also,

unfortunately, took his eyesight.

Since Horus cannot see those he admits to the Crystal Cave, he will only allow those that know the secret password to enter.

Speak the following word to Horus and he shall grant thee passage to the Crystal Cave:

(at this point I must abstain from that revelation, for the very need of balance in these affairs, I agree with Melkeer's evaluation.)

(It goes on to say:)

Do not speak this password anywhere except when seeking passage into the Crystal Cave, as our adversaries are lurking in the shadows - they are everywhere!

Go with the light, friend.

-Frater Melkeer
Notes:

Those who know me and my obsession with the Dark Arts from my past will understand my very reasons not to reveal all.
As I have been a beacon of light in the past through the Oracle, this balance of Power is not in my hands, but is simply a descrimination of knowledge to both sides of the Balance.
